Financial Empowerment Workshops To NYC High Schoolers

LONG ISLAND, NY (BlackNews.com) - Black History Month is not only a time to honor past achievements, it's a time to empower oneself to do better. Delta Funding Corporation and TaylorMade Media will tour New York City High Schools with Break the Cycle - The ABCs of Financial Empowerment, workshop de-signed to teach students how to develop financial responsibility. The tour kicked off at Brownsville Academy High School, and proceeded to Thurgood Marshall Academy High School in Harlem, NY and lastly on Thursday, February 27, will visit H.S. 420 Springfield Gardens, 143-10 Springfield Blvd, Springfield Gardens, NY

"Improved financial literacy has been a pathway for millions of individuals and their families to accumulate assets and achieve their financial goals. Financially literate young adults are more likely to practice sound financial planning, plan for their futures, and fund their education," said Russell Carter, Delta Funding Corporation's National Vice President of Community Affairs.

The students who will be graduating from high school understand the principle of coveting the "bling-bling society," however, they know little about money management: how to save, invest and plan for the future. Created to enhance the classroom instruc-
